

So, the two pretend military commanders set up their operations room. They worked very busily, though in reality they did nothing at all.

The Charlatans in their command room.

They asked for the shiniest of medals and the purest bars of gold bullion. They put the medals on their own uniforms and hid the gold under their pillows. Then they pretended to work on their invasion plans until late at night.

The gold.