

The Tsar still liked nothing better than to shout “NATO” every time he needed to cheer himself up and scare his people. But inevitably, he cried “NATO” once too often and not even his own people believed him anymore. After all, nobody believes a Liar even when he is speaking the truth, which of course the Tsar never ever did.

And so came to pass the Happy Day that the Tsar was delivered to the International Criminal Court in the Hague.

The monster caged in the Hague.

In time, the Magical Country was cleansed of Evil and with the help of its many friends became even more magical. People flocked from around the World to visit this pillar of democracy and freedom to meet those who fought tyranny, and to honour those who made the ultimate sacrifice to protect us all. That must never ever be forgotten.

Happily, the Tsar did not live happily ever after. For their Tsar's folly, fate resigned the people of the Empire to live in immeasurable shame until the very end of days.
